Dear Sir.

I am enclosing a catalogue of a very rare collection of old Roman coins.

It is a private collection, and I believe one of the finest in existence and I understand second only to the one in the British Museum, London.

The owner, a personal friend of mine, is, for various reasons, anxious to ~~dispose~~ sell it.

If you are interested will

'Jou kindly communicate with me at the above address and I will gladly give 'Jou any information 'Jou desire.

'Jours very truly
Mark Skidmore.

Dear Sir:

Your letter to the Metropolitan Museum of Art has been referred to me for reply.

We are interested in the collection of Roman coins about which you write, but cannot make any comment or give you any answer without seeing the coins. If it is possible to have this collection brought up to the Museum, we would be pleased to look it over.

Very truly yours,

Curator
